In New York State Rifle and Pistol Association v. Bruen, the Supreme Court struck down part of New York’s concealed carry permitting law. This holding will not only reshape the ways in which courts evaluate current and future gun regulations, but the decision may have particular implications for marginalized racial groups given other legal doctrines. In this Constitution Day talk, Kami Chavis will explore these implications and suggest potential ways forward.

THE UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH SCHOOL OF LAW PRESENTS A CONSTITUTION DAY EVENT

NY RIFLE V. BRUEN:
Understanding the Racial Justice Implications of the Supreme Court’s Recent Second Amendment Jurisprudence

FEATURING KEYNOTE SPEAKER

KAMI N. CHAVIS
William & Mary Law School Vice Dean
R. Hugh and Nolie Haynes Professor of Law
Director of the W&M Center for Criminal Justice Policy and Reform

In New York State Rifle and Pistol Association v. Bruen, the Supreme Court struck down part of New York’s concealed carry permitting law. This holding will not only reshape the ways in which courts evaluate current and future gun regulations, but the decision may have particular implications for marginalized racial groups given other legal doctrines. In this Constitution Day talk, Kami Chavis will explore these implications and suggest potential ways forward.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 18
12:30-1:30 P.M.
box lunch provided

Barco Law Building
Teplitz Memorial Moot Courtroom
3900 Forbes Avenue I Pittsburgh, PA 15260

Kami Chavis is Vice Dean, the R. Hugh and Nolie Haynes Professor of Law, and Director of the W&M Center for Criminal Justice Policy and Reform at William & Mary Law School. She is a leader in the field of police accountability. Her research focuses on using Cooperative Federalism principles and stakeholder participation to implement sustainable reforms in the criminal justice system.

She writes in the areas of police and prosecutorial accountability, federal hate crimes legislation and enforcement, and racial profiling.