

Master of Arts Management (MAM) and JD Dual Degree

The Heinz College MAM Program has a dual degree partnership with the University of Pittsburgh School of Law.

The art world continues to evolve in our digitized and connected world. This unique dual degree track gives you a deeper understanding of how legal considerations impact all stages of the artistic process and enhances your ability to protect, represent, and serve artists and cultural institutions alike.

If your future career lies at the intersection of arts management and the law, the MAM-JD dual degree track will get you the comprehensive education you need in less time—and at a significantly lower cost—by merging the quantitative power and interdisciplinary training of a Heinz College MAM degree with a rigorous legal education from University of Pittsburgh.

Students in this dual degree option spend their first year studying full-time at either of the two schools, and the second year full-time at the other. Years three and four are integrated.

Degrees earned:

Master of Arts Management (MAM)

Carnegie Mellon University's Heinz College

Juris Doctorate

University of Pittsburgh School of Law

Duration: 4 years

Additional Materials:

- We offer a number of videos featuring our students and alumni on our Youtube channel, including a video featuring a MAM degree alumna.
- You can view the schedule of our upcoming webinars and a library of our past webinars online.
- The fact sheet (attached) is an overview of the impact our degree can make in your career.