Our Pitt Law faculty continue to publish their impactful and timely work in the very best journals.

- Professor Jessie Allen’s article “Lawyers for White People?” was published in the Kansas Law Review.
- Professor Elena Baylis’s article "White Supremacy, Police Brutality, and Family Separation: Preventing Crimes Against Humanity Within the United States" was accepted for publication by the University of Illinois Law Review.
- Professor Deborah Brake and Joanna Grossman’s co-authored article “Reproducing Inequality Under Title IX” has been published in the Harvard Journal of Law and Gender.
- Professor William Carter’s article “The Second Founding and the First Amendment” has been published by the Texas Law Review.
- Professor Greer Donley and Jill Lens’ co-authored article “Second Trimester Abortion Dangertalk” has been accepted for publication in the Boston College Law Review.
- Professor Greer Donley’s article “Early Abortion Exceptionalism” has been accepted for publication in the Cornell Law Review.
- Professor Jules Lobel’s article “Mass Solitary and Mass Incarceration: Explaining the Dramatic Rise in Prolonged Solitary in America’s Prisons” was published in the Northwestern University Law Review. 