The old website <https://courses.law.pitt.edu> will no longer display new course information going forward, although it is currently published for legacy information.

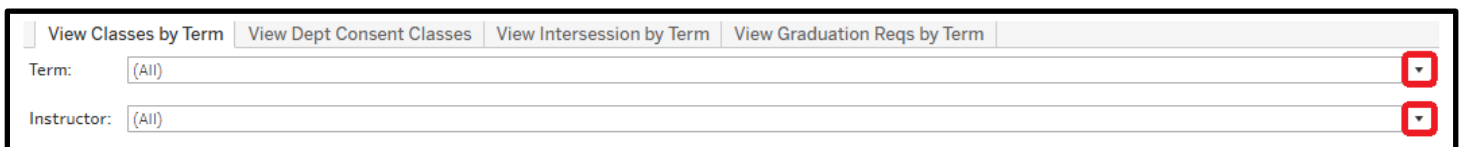

Visit <https://law.pitt.edu> and click "Courses" to reach the new Courses & Curriculum webpage.

Toggle between tabs for "View Classes by Term," "View Department Consent Classes," "View Intercession by Term," and "View Graduation Requirements by Term".

Use drop-down menus to filter on Term, Instructor, and Graduation Requirement where present.

Scroll to the right and hover the mouse over a blue triangle to view additional course information for a specific course.

Class: 5157 - 29732

Description: In this course students will use techniques and exercises drawn from improvisational theater to develop and refine communication skills, apart from writing, that are essential to effective lawyering. The course will focus on several core skill sets, including listening nonjudgmentally and empathetically, being present and aware of status, communicating with confidence and authenticity, adapting to changing information and circumstances, and collaborating with others. The course will focus on both the use of improvisational techniques and exercises to build these and other core skill sets, and the application of those skill sets in simulations of fundamental lawyering tasks, specifically client interviews, negotiations with opposing counsel, and oral argument. Students will also work in teams on a group project and presentation

In any given row for a class, if there are multiple blue triangles side-by-side, this indicates that the class satisfies multiple graduation requirements.

Similarly, multiple instructors are teaching the class if multiple blue triangles are stacked in a single row.

For example, a class taught by multiple instructors that satisfies multiple graduation requirements would present as such, where two different instructors (stacked) are teaching the class, and the class has three graduation requirements (side-by-side) attached.

Here is an example of how the column presents when scrolling through the report.

Please note— there is an error in the naming of the ‘LAWFDSLGRE’ class attribute between PeopleSoft and the published Courses & Curriculum report, in which the full name is listed as “Law Legal Responsibility”. The correct name is “LAW Foundations of Legal Research” and a translation is built into the report for the Grad Requirements column. The error will be corrected in the PeopleSoft database as soon as possible.

Filtering by “Law Legal Responsibility (LAWFDSLGRE)” will provide results for the LAW Foundations of Legal Research (LAWFDSLGRE) graduation requirement.
